NOVELS WITHOUT ENDINGS.

Six Famous Stories to Which Death Wrote the Word "Finis."

There are about six famous novels in the English language which have only a beginning. Like the grandfather's clock, "they stop short never to go again," because the author, when he had got so far, laid down his pen and died before he could take it up again.

The most famous of these is, of course, "The Mystery of Edwin Drood," which some critics think would have been Dickens' masterpiece had he lived to finish it. But there it stands, unfinished, and the brain that conceived it carried to the grave the solution of the mystery, and a mystery it remains to this day, in spite of countless efforts to solve it.

Robert Louis Stevenson also left an unfinished novel upon which he was engaged when death ended his labors. The novel was entitled "St. Ives," but happily there was more to go upon than in the case of "Edwin Drood," and it is generally admitted that Sir Quiller-Couch made one of the best attempts on record to finish another man's novel. He proved quite the ideal man for the job.

While everybody knows that Dickens laid a novel unfinished, few know that his great rival, Thackeray, did the same thing. The novelist had just started the Cornhill Magazine, of which the most prominent feature was a novel from the editor's pen entitled "Denis Duval," which he was writing month by month as the installment fell due. Suddenly he died, and the serial was left half finished. Happily, however, the careful Thackeray had left full notes for the development of the story, which was finished by Frederick Greenwood.

Who has not read "Pride and Prejudice" and "Sense and Sensibility," the productions of a quiet, consumptive little woman named Jane Austen? The white scarves carried her off when she was in the midst of another masterpiece, entitled "The Watsons," which was found in her desk after her death. What the world lost when Charlotte Brontë died, after a brief year of married life, who can say? It certainly missed a nameless novel which the gifted author of "Jane Eyre" had started. But to a little she had done it that none of her successors in fiction has had the temerity to attempt even to finish it, and it is likely even to remain an interesting fragment.

In this respect it may be compared to another unfinished work, Edgar Allan Poe's weird story, "The Narrative of Arthur Gordon Pym." Who could finish that story? It is doubtful whether Poe himself could, for he lived eleven years after it was first published in his fragmentary condition.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Luck in Disguise.

"Don't tell me after this," said Mrs. McDuff as she put her paper aside, "that there's nothing in luck."

"The Caldwell. Burglars broke into their house last night."

"Oh! I thought from the way you spoke somebody had been having a streak of good luck."

"It was good luck. It gave Mrs. Caldwell a chance to tell the reporter that more than $500 worth of silver was taken from her house. When the two explorers were finally lifted over the edge of the cliff they were on the point of complete exhaustion."

How to Bleach Ivory.

To bleach ivory ornaments or piano keys the following method works well: The ornaments are first washed or "soaked" if possible in a lath of unslaked lime which has in it a few ounces of bran and water. This should make a paste solution if properly mixed and will bleach the ivory which is discolored or stained. It should be rubbed off with a cloth and the ivory dried in magnesia powder. After a few minutes a few strokes with a cloth give the ivory a brilliant polish.—London Mail.

Man Are Not Vain.

"They were talking of the vanity of women and one of the few ladies present undertook a defense. 'Of course,' she said, 'I admit that men are vain and men are not. Why,' she added, with a glance around, 'the necktie of the handsomest man in the room is even now on the back of his collar.' And then she smiled for every man present had put his hand up behind his neck!"

Her Recitation.

"Put some spirit into it, child," shouted the father, who is an actor. "Make some gestures. What is she reciting, anyhow?" he demanded of his wife.

"She won't need any gestures with this," retorted the latter. "She is reciting the multiplication table."—New York American.

EXPLORING VESUVIUS.

A Descent into the Volcano's Burning Fumes Laid Bare.

Although many tourists visit the volcano of Vesuvius and enjoy the grand and terrible sight, few have the daring or the physical endurance to descend into the depths of the crater. Suffocating sulfur fumes, red-hot cinders, preposterous heat, and the broken nature of the constantly plunging, are obstacles that only a few explorers have overcome. The last to accomplish the descent was A. Console. He was accompanied by A. Malladra, who had been the second to explore the crater. Their experiences are described by Monsieur V. Forbin in La Nature.

Tied to a long rope, which six guides at the top lowered inch by inch, the two began to descend the perilous slope. The broken nature of the wall, which was soamed with deep crevasses, made the downward climb extremely difficult, and the crumbling rock offered no secure grip or foothold. The heat soon became almost insupportable. Mr. Console felt that his feet were actually roasting, and a thermometer that Mr. Malladra carried registered 179.3 degrees F.

Finally the explorers reached the bottom of the cliff and halted near the fumarole Morrell. This hole is probably the vent of the volcanic chimney that has been almost entirely blocked by years of accumulated debris. It constantly vomits forth clouds of white and yellow fumes that render the surrounding air unbreathable. All about this fumarole the ground is covered with a deep layer of hot white powder mixed with gravel, into which the two adventurers sank almost to their knees.

As Mr. Console was focusing his camera to take a view of the crater the ground beneath him suddenly opened, and he sank to his waist in the red-hot cinders. As his companion was some distance away, he had to effect his own rescue. Fortunately the end of the rope that had been used in the descent was within a few feet of him. He managed to grasp it and by its aid drew himself from his precarious and painful situation.

Every moment of their stay at the bottom of the crater rocks were breaking from the wall and plunging down about them. Mr. Console, who had stayed near the foot of the cliff, had to keep dodging these dangerous missiles. One or two did strike and wound him. The suffocating heat and the noxious gases brought on a strange sickness that caused him to reel in his gait and his heart to beat rapidly and violently. A terrible fit of coughing and choking seized Mr. Malladra, who had stayed too long near the fumarole, and it lasted until he reached the top again.

Naturally the ascent was far more difficult than the descent had been. Although they had spent only a few minutes at the bottom of the crater, they were so spent that they were several times on the point of fainting.

Once, after scaling a perpendicular wall of twenty-five feet, Mr. Console fell and lay on his back for half an hour. He was rescued by the limit of his endurance. Summoning all his strength and courage, however, he dragged himself on. Looking back a moment later, he saw a small avalanche sweep over the exact spot he had just left. When the two explorers were finally lifted over the edge of the cliff they were on the point of complete exhaustion.

One Get a Definition.

"Who can give me the correct definition of the word intense?" asked a teacher of her class. Three or four of the pupils gave different answers, but none was correct.

"Surely some one can give that definition," the teacher said, almost ready to explain the term. A hand went up from the rear, and a little girl was awarded permission to give her definition.

"Teacher, Indians live in tents," the pupil replied. "Only the teacher realized the humor of the answer."—Kansas City Star.

An Eye to Safety.

"Captain," said a wealthy passenger, who was about to take his first trip across the ocean, "I understand this ship has got several water tight compartments."

"Yes, sir," was the reply.

"Captain," the passenger went on, "I don't want one of those compartments. I don't care what it costs."—London Telegraph.

Hande's Retort.

A vocalist of the eighteenth century called Gordon accused Handel of accompanying him badly and said if he did not change his style he would jump on the harpsichord and smash it. "Let me know you will do that," was the reply, "and I will advertise. I am sure more people will come to see you jump than to hear you sing!"

GLACIER NATIONAL PARK.

Montana's Scenic Wonder Is the Switzerland of America.

Within the borders of the Glacier National park are attractions for the scientist, nature lover and tourist unsurpassed in any country in the world, tourists of worldwide experience pronouncing it the Switzerland of America. The elevations in the park range from 3,100 feet to over 10,400. Within its confines are sixty active glaciers, these ice sheets being the sources of beautiful cascades and roaring mountain streams flowing into innumerable clear, placid lakes for which the park is famed, the most noted of these being Lake McDonald, Lake St. Marys, Lake Louise, Leeburg lake, Red Eagle lake, Kintla lake, Bowman lake, Waterton lake, Logging lake, Quartz lake, Harrison lake and Two Medicine lake.

Lake McDonald, the southern end of which is two and a half miles from Belton, is one of the most beautiful lakes in America. It is about 3,150 feet above sea level, nearly ten miles long, ten miles wide and surrounded by mountains covered with virgin forests of western larch, cedar, white pine, Douglas fir, spruce and hemlock. Upper Lake St. Marys is on the eastern side of the mountains, about thirty-two miles north of Missoula. It is about ten miles long, with a maximum width of one mile, and toward the upper end the mountains rise in rugged walls not far from the water's edge. Its elevation is about 4,470 feet above the surrounding level.

The principal glaciers in the park are Blackfoot, Grinnell, Harrison, Pummelly, Red Eagle, Sperry, Kintla, Agassiz and Chaney. In most of the lakes of the park there is excellent fishing at certain times of the year, and at others many of the streams afford fine sport with hook and line.

Within the park boundaries there are many varieties of game which are indigenous to this section of the country, such as bear, elk, moose, deer, big horn sheep, mountain goat, mountain lion, as well as the smaller furred animals of the forest.—Exchange.

Strength Out of Weakness.

The extent to which the world's work has been done by invalids is shown by a few examples given in a medical contemporary:

Caesar, Mohammed and Napoleon were epileptic.

Calvin was in himself almost a pathological museum.

Frederick the Great was of delicate constitution and frequently ill.

Darwin was prostrated by two hours of work daily.

Johnson was scrupulous and melancholic.

Scott dictated "The Bride of Lammermoor" during such intervals of lucidity as were left him when taking large doses of opium for "spasms."

The Printed Cough.

A singular fashion which prevailed among the preachers of Cromwell's time was that of coughing or hemming in the middle of the sermon. The necessity of this was usually attracting the attention of the listeners could not have argued well for the brilliance of the sermons. Some authorities say that the preachers coughed merely as an ornament to speech. At any rate, when the sermons were printed, as many of them were, the coughs and hems were always indicated on the margin of the page.

The Banking Habit

means sound sleep, good digestion, cool judgment and independence.

It is good business to become identified with a good bank; to make it a habit to consult with its officers.

Cash in the bank, with the credit it creates, is the key to opportunity and a reserve against adversity.

We invite you to open an account with us. We do not insist on a large beginning. The main thing is to make a start.

ENTIRE FAMILY SAVED AFTER ALL SEEMED LOST

MAN IN WATER LOST CONSCIOUSNESS WHEN FAMILY DISAPPEARED

Dayton, O., March 31.—With the rapidly subsiding flood waters and dissipating of panic among refugees, the thrilling adventures continue to come to light.

The most interesting of these was the experience of the family of Chas. M. Adams in Riverdale.

When the flood first rushed through that section of the city Mr. Adams got his wife and ten-months-old twin girls into a skiff and took them to the home of a friend in Warder street. An hour later it was again necessary to move and the family was taken by rescuers out of a second story window. The canoe in which they were riding was dashed against a telegraph pole and capsized. Adams swam in the icy waters several minutes before he was picked up. Just as he was rescued he saw his wife sink for the third time. The baby girls were floating down the street. Then he collapsed. Three hours later he regained consciousness to find himself in an attic. Beside him on the floor lay his wife, who he believed had drowned. A few minutes later a man crawled into the attic window from the floating roof of a barn bringing with him the twins. They had caught in the branches of a tree and were picked off unharmed. Mrs. Adams was rescued as she was going down the third time by a high school boy on a hastily improvised raft. The lad was a member of the Riverdale troop of Boy Scouts and had been trained how to administer first aid to the drowning.

MRS. FLANDERS WILL ANSWER FOR MURDER

FAMOUS CASE COMES UP IN EMANUEL THIS MONTH

Swainsboro, Ga., March 29.—As the April term of superior court approaches, which convenes here the second Monday in April, interest again centers in the trial of Mrs. Fred Flanders, charged with the murder of her husband nearly three years ago, and for which Dr. W. J. McNaughton has been under sentence of death for some time.

Mrs. Flanders will be defended by Messrs. Smith & Kirkland, of this city, and Luther Z. Rosser, of Atlanta, who was one of the trial of lawyers defending Mrs. Daisy Grace.

Mrs. Flanders was jointly indicted with Dr. McNaughton, for the death of her husband, which occurred on June 4, 1910. Traces of arsenic were found in the dead man's stomach, and Dr. McNaughton, who was the attending physician, and who boarded in the dead man's family, was accused of killing him.

Dr. McNaughton was tried and convicted and sentenced to hang Dec. 9, that year. Three times since then he has heard the sentence of death passed upon him and as many times has been respited, Governor Brown holding that the condemned man was not to die until the woman indicted with him shall have been tried, it being believed that his life depended on the result of Mrs. Flanders' trial. If she is found guilty the condemned physician will, in all probability, be hanged, but if she is acquitted he will again make an effort for freedom.

Woman Drowns in a Well.

Louisville, Ga., April 1.—With instructions for the disposition of her remains and a farewell message to friends and loved ones, written in the sand, Mrs. John Gunn threw herself into the well at her home, ten miles from here and was drowned. She had dressed herself neatly for burial. It is supposed worry over financial matters had deranged her mind.

Besides her husband she leaves three children.

FRAMING A FIGHT ON HOKE SMITH

ENEMIES OF SENATOR ARE GETTING THEIR NOSES TOGETHER

Atlanta, April 1.—Chagrined by the force of the boomerang contained in the apology made to the senate caucus by Senator Tillman, just at the time when they were attempting to create prejudice in Georgia and make political capital out of the defeat of Senator Bacon for president pro tem. of the senate, that group of Atlanta politicians and their allies throughout the state who never lose an opportunity to attack and embarrass Senator Hoke Smith, are now bending their energies to bring out opposition to him when he runs for re-election next year.

Hardly a day passes that one or more of these little cancanes are not held in Atlanta. These politicians have not yet centered upon a candidate. The names which have so far been mentioned as possible opponents to Senator Smith are Gov. Brown, Governor-elect John M. Slaton, Charles S. Barrett, president of the Farmers Union, and former Congressman W. G. Brantley, who has just moved to Atlanta from Brunswick.

It is planned, according to report, to sound out the sentiment of the voters on each of these gentlemen in turn, and to select for the standard-bearer of the opposition to Senator Smith the man who appears to be in highest favor.

The most astute of the anti-Smith politicians predict that when all doubts are resolved the choice of a candidate will fall to ex-Congressman Brantley. They profess to see in Mr. Brantley's location in Atlanta a shrewd move on his part to get himself in position for this race. His residence here, they say, will afford him a fine opportunity to obtain the right kind of publicity and also put him where he can be on the inside of the big political machines.

All Georgia politics are at this time revolving about this senatorial race, which is more than a year distant, and it is highly probable that the first audible rumbles of the approaching conflict will be heard during this summer's session of the legislature, when the anti-Smith men plan to begin the stretching of their wires.

Joy Ride Ends in Pistol Fray at Dublin

Dublin, Ga., March 31.—Dave Nobles, a well known citizen, was shot three times yesterday and badly wounded by George McCord, another prominent resident. McCord was out motor riding with Mrs. Nobles, who is suing Nobles for divorce. Nobles followed the couple in another car, and coming upon them flourished a pistol. McCord was also armed and at once opened fire upon Nobles, who fell wounded in his shoulder and in his thigh. He is badly but not fatally wounded.

The shooting created a good deal of excitement.

"ECONOMY THE ROAD TO WEALTH" THINKS FOSTER

REAL ESTATE MAN'S DOCTRINE IS "DOLLAR SAVED IS TWO DOLLARS MADE"

A firm believer in the entire collection of doctrines about the value of real estate as an investment, and economy being the road to wealth, etc., Edgar W. Foster set a living illustration of his theory before the people of Statesboro last Saturday when he left town with various and sundry bills unpaid. His only departure from a complete example was that he spent money for railroad fare when walking is cheaper, but his reason was probably a good one—that the train could carry him faster than he could walk, and speed was an item of importance at the time.

Foster came to Statesboro on Sunday before, stopped at the leading hotel, and began to look for a real estate investment. Before the day was over he had decided upon a choice garden spot belonging to Mr. L. T. Denmark on East Main street. The price Mr. Denmark put on it was made with a view to pulling a little, but Foster took it so quick that Denmark was ashamed that he hadn't asked for more. Monday, Foster had a paper drawn calling for titles to be made upon the payment of the purchase price gave his note for somewhat over $2,000, and agreed to hand Mr. Denmark a good large cash payment during the next day or two, when he was to receive the bond for titles and begin the sale of the land. The same day he employed a gang of workmen, began the naming of streets in his new subdivision (calling one after himself as a guarantee of good faith), and began to cast about for that class of beings of whom it is said that one is born every minute—suckers.

The Transis office looked good to him, and he came in, bought a nickel's worth of ledger paper for making plats of his property, paid cash for it, and gave an order for several dollar's worth of advertising matter to be called for the next day. The stuff was called for all right.

Foster then hired a colored man with a team to come up to haul the crowds from the city to inspect the property. The man came but there were no crowds, and he was put off with the injunction to come back Monday and get his money.

This was about noon Saturday that matters were beginning to press the real estate man, and about two minutes later he was struck with the recollection of his advice about saving your money so as not to be turned out in your old age. Like the boy in the scriptures who had been feeding the hogs, his thought was along the line of arising and getting to a far country.

The 3:30 train was the next thing he thought of, and wrapping his few belongings in a small red paper and leaving his empty grip at the hotel, he quietly meandered toward the depot from which the first train should depart. It came; Foster went.

Mourners: Mr. Denmark, who lost the trade; THE TIMES, who failed to collect an advertising account; the hotel, who lost a board bill; Mr. Frank Morris, who paid part down on a couple of lots to which he never got a title; the negro wagoner who came to haul the crowds to inspect the property, and perhaps various and sundry others who are ashamed to reveal their gullibility.

Wouldn't it be awful if women's clothes were as bad as men make out they are?

If folks were turned inside out there would be as much difference in them as there now is.

There never was a woman who would acknowledge that her neighbor could make better butter than she.

If you have ever noticed, it is the busy people who never complain about not getting their work done.

A woman wouldn't be satisfied if her husband never did anything she could complain to her mother about.

A person doesn't get blamed for more than half the mean things he does—and less credit than that for the good ones.

The happy married people are not as noticeable as the other kind because they don't make as much noise about it.

A man 98 years of age dropped his pipe on the bed clothing and was burned to death. Some folks never do get old enough to learn.

After all the fun men have made of women for their inability to throw things straight, the suffragists are hitting the mark quite frequently.

A woman's one great fault seems to be in the hats she wears—but the reason it appears that way may be because the hat hides all her other faults.

If women of a hundred years ago could see their granddaughters of today they would think they must have married a lot of stingy husbands.

An eastern professor says he has succeeded in educating houseflies. We trust their ideas of propagation will follow along the same lines as those of educated humans.

If there is anything that justifies a man in getting exasperated, it is to get up to answer the telephone at 2 a. m. and have central tell you she rang the wrong number.

Even with the democrats in power, we anticipate that there will be some slight differences of opinion to overcome before we get the tariff fixed so that it suits all of us.

It isn't as easy to get acquainted with the girl who stays at home and helps her mother as it is with the other kind—but you will be well repaid for the extra effort required in finding her.

"FAGGED-OUT" WOMEN

Will Find a Helpful Suggestion In This Letter.

Overworked, run-down, "fagged out" women who feel as though they could hardly drag about, should profit by Miss Richter's experience. She says: "Last winter I was completely run down and felt fagged out all the time, was nervous and had indigestion."

"One of my friends advised me to take Vinol, and it has done me great good. The tired, worn-out feeling is all gone, and I am strong, vigorous and well. The stomach trouble soon disappeared and now I eat heartily and have perfect digestion. I wish every tired, weak, nervous woman could have Vinol, for I never spent any money in my life that did me so much good as that I spent for Vinol." Marie Richter, Detroit, Mich.

Thousands of women and men who were formerly weak and sickly owe their present rugged health to the wonderful strength-giving effects of Vinol. We guarantee Vinol to build you up and make you strong. If it does not, we give back your money.

The Cost of Living.

A business man of Statesboro has prepared an interesting statement of the present cost of living compared with that of ten years ago, and has kindly handed it to the TIMES for publication, as follows:

Bacon and lard, now 13 1/2¢ lb., then 8¢; corn, now $1 per bu., then 50¢; fodder, now $1.75, then $1; hay, now $2.50 per ton, then $12; peas, now $2.50 per bu., then $1; sweet potatoes, now $1 per bu., then 40¢; peanuts, now $2.50 per bu., then $1; cow hides, now about $3 each, then 25¢; butter, 35¢ per lb., then 15¢; grown chickens, now 40¢ to 50¢ each, then 20¢ to 25¢; eggs, now 20¢, then 10¢.

Now, there is a good demand for all these products but they are nearly all shipped in here from other farming sections and in much greater quantity than formerly.

There is a good demand for all kinds of vegetables at prices that make it profitable to grow them.

We complain about the price of cotton, which is about 50 per cent average higher now than then, and we nearly always make a good crop of it and everything else, and never making a crop failure. The cotton seed is now worth $7.50 per ton as compared with $15 per ton ten years ago. Mules are the only farm necessity that have advanced much in price and they are really a farm product.

We give these figures as approximately correct for reflection and consideration and beg to inquire why we are in such financial distress? All goods are about the same prices that they were about ten years ago; the only difference is that we are buying more and much higher priced goods.

The agricultural classes are generally amply advised, therefore it seems unnecessary to offer any suggestion in this connection. If there is any point to be seen, a blind man ought to see it. In a word, the point would be to buy less and make more.

A woman tells her neighbors that her husband does twice as many thoughtful things as he really does, and at home accuses him of about three times as many mean things as he really does.

Danger From Hydrophobia.

The recent mad dog scare has been the cause of quite a little discussion locally regarding the danger of hydrophobia and the length of time required for the development of rabies after a person is bitten by a mad dog. Study of the disease is quite interesting. An encyclopedia discussing it says: "The great danger lies in the fact that the person bitten by a supposed mad dog imagines its symptoms, especially if nervous or hysterical; whereas only a few of those bitten by a mad dog take the disease."

An interesting statement also is that the average period of incubation is forty days, but that it varies from fifteen days to two years.

Until the discovery of the Pasteur treatment thirty years or less ago the method of treatment was the application of a loadstone to the bite. This method is now looked upon as more or less a superstition. The Pasteur method is as follows: A rabbit is inoculated with a fragment of the spinal cord of a mad dog, and it in turn becomes affected with hydrophobia within a fortnight. A portion of the rabbit's spinal cord is employed to inoculate a second rabbit, which also contracts the disease, but more rapidly. The spinal cord of this rabbit is used to inoculate a third, and so on. At each step of the process the intensity of the disease becomes greater, and the period of incubation shorter. When the spinal cord of these animals, which have died of hydrophobia, is suspended in a perfectly dry tube its virulence diminishes by degrees and at last disappears. A collection of these spinal cords, some of them entirely stale and powerless, others quite fresh and extremely active, are always kept in readiness. To render a person insusceptible to rabies, he is first inoculated with the stale and powerless specimens, then with fresher and more active ones, and lastly with the most powerful of them all, when he becomes quite proof against the inoculation of rabies. The first patient was treated by the Pasteur method in 1885. There is yet claimed to be some doubt of the efficacy of this treatment. The difficulties that attend the possible certainty of its merit may be judged by the fact that 60 per cent of people bitten by mad dogs do not develop hydrophobia, and the further fact that incubation of the disease is extremely long, cases having been known to be deferred until two years after the bite.

Bulloch County Boy Near Path of Omaha Cyclone

Tom Richardson, a son of the late S. A. Richardson of the 48th district, is now engaged in railroad work at Fremont, Neb., and was near the path of the cyclone which passed through that state and did such great damage to the city ten days ago.

In a personal letter to the TIMES the young man tells of his sensations while the cyclone was passing. He says:

"It just missed Fremont by a small margin—came within 15 miles of us, but turned and went to the westward. We saw it coming—one of the worst clouds imaginable; with wind and lightning—and were scared half to death at the looks of it. It did great damage to life and property along its path, and we are now cut off entirely from all communication to the east, and are having great difficulty in knowing the location of our trains."

Young Richardson has been in the west for the past five years or more, and is much pleased with that part of the country—except the cyclones.

New Sugar Tariff Bill

Up to President Wilson
Washington, D. C., March 31.—President Wilson will decide whether raw sugar shall go on the free list or carry a small duty in the new tariff bill.

Congressional leaders are willing to defer to his attitude. Chairman Underwood of the ways and means committee is waiting to hear from the president.

The Louisiana delegation and the congressmen from the beet sugar districts want a duty.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury

It is necessary to guard against the use of ointments which contain mercury. The whole system often suffers through the use of such ointments. Such ointments should never be used except on prescriptions from a physician. From the use of such ointments, the system is often deranged, and the patient is left with a bad case of catarrh. In buying such ointments, the patient should be careful to see that the name of the physician is on the box. It is a common practice to use such ointments without a prescription, and the patient is often left with a bad case of catarrh. When a grain of sand gets into a clam shell and causes the clam to shut up and grieve, it doesn't wait and moan and find fault with all creation. It sets about doing that which will alleviate the irritation. It covers the rough substance with a secretion that makes it smooth and comfortable and easy to abide with. In a few years the homely, unobtrusive grain of sand becomes a beautiful pearl. We, too, may cover our sorrows and make them things of value rather than an irritation. We may learn from the lowly clam how to beautify our lives and make them worth something to the fellow man.

WHITE HOUSE AGAIN WHITE.

The White House is once more white. It is always supposed to be white, but during the course of a year he gets pretty dingy. Usually it is painted, but this year there was no painting. The house was so dirty that the department was called on instead, and the hose was turned on the house with very good effect.

Society Man Vows to Die.

Newport society is gossiping over a remark made recently at a dinner by a bachelor society man that he was going to die. The remark was made in general. He was quoted as saying: "In less than two years I will have my department. I am sitting at my right hand and waiting to be called. Do you mean to commit suicide?" "That's just what I mean, precisely," he replied.

Tomato Salad With Cheese.

Pick and slice the tomatoes and arrange in a salad dish. Mix a dressing of oil, white wine, pepper and salt and stir in some grated Parmesan. Pour this over the tomatoes, let stand on ice for 15 minutes or so before serving.

FEBRUARY 1 IS FIXED AS DAY FOR TAX RETURNS

PROPERTY OWNERS MUST RETURN THEIR HOLDINGS OF THAT DATE

Tax returns must be made to the county and state this year as of February 1st. This date has been selected by Governor Brown and the controller general and state treasurer.

Tax Receiver McElveen has received official notice of this date, and has begun arrangements for the reception of returns. He is advertising appointments for his first round, which will begin on Monday, 14th inst. He will make one round before superior court, and will be at Statesboro during the court as has been the custom. The books are never thrown open until the date of liability has been fixed. This means that persons who return their personal property shall take an account of their belongings on Feb. 1 and make their returns on a basis of its value at that time. Anything they may have acquired since that date need not be returned, no matter how valuable it may be, and on the other hand they are duty bound to return for taxation any property they may have had in their possession on that date, even though they disposed of it a short time afterward.

Those who attend to this at once will find it a great convenience, as they will not be haunted with the idea later that they may overlook the matter and find late in the year that they have been double taxed for failure to make their returns.

The "Lords of Creation" At Brooklet Friday Next

Under the direction of Mrs. Minnie Warrington, of the Statesboro Institute expression department, assisted by local talent, the "Lords of Creation," a drama in three acts, will be presented at Brooklet next Friday evening at 8 o'clock. Admission fee will be charged, and the public is cordially invited to attend.

First Game of Season: S. H. S. 7, F. D. A. S. 5

The first ball game of the season was played Monday at the Agricultural School, where the Statesboro High School team defeated the Agriculture nine by a score of seven to five. This first game showed the baseball fans that there will be given some good games before the season closes. While the "Culture" boys played a snappy game, the outcome was never doubted after the third inning—the Institute boys had things their way.

Harry Smith pitched for the High School and showed up well. He struck out eleven men and walked only two. Many times with men on the bases he would settle down and strike the next ones out. The whole team played a "jam up" game and prospects are bright for a successful season. Special mention may be made of the work of Gould and Johnson.

Dasher pitched a splendid game for the F. D. A. S., but lacked support.

The Institute has a nice schedule made out and the next game will be played Monday with F. D. A. S. On April 19th the team will play the Savannah High School in Savannah. On May 3rd the team goes to Augusta for a game against the Academy of Richmond county. May 10th the Savannah High School comes to Statesboro. The manager is trying to land games with Benedictine in Savannah and Waynesboro. There are also three games scheduled with the F. D. A. S.

The Wright Athletic Field has been fixed over and the diamond is one of the fastest in this section of the county. The line-up for the S. H. S. was as follows: Suddath c., Smith p., Quattlebaum 1b., R. Johnson, 2b., McDougald 3b., Arden s. s., Gould l. f., Donaldson c. f., Kennedy r. f. Admission to the game Monday will be 10 cents. Game called at 2:30.

It is possible to get too optimistic, but anyway it won't bore your friends.

Prominent Colored Man Dead.

Ed. Jones, a prominent colored man who has resided in Statesboro for the past twenty years, died at his home last Saturday at noon of heart failure. He was stricken while at work at his shop, and expired shortly after reaching home. The body was held for interment until Tuesday awaiting the arrival of relatives who live in New Orleans.

Ed. was one of the best known colored men of the city, and was highly esteemed by both races. He was a good workman. He had worked at the blacksmith trade ever since coming to Statesboro, and recently was operating a shop of his own.

Got Bad Cut From Bat.

Lewis Brinson, aged 10 years, received a bad cut in right temple when hit by a baseball bat at the school house Monday afternoon. The youth and several others of his age were engaged in a game of ball when one of the boys let the bat slip and it struck young Brinson in the temple. Three stitches were required to sew up the wound.

Hagin Again Wins Suit.

In the city court yesterday a verdict was rendered for the defendant in the suit of H. A. Edensfield against Dasher Hagin for damages. The suit was based on slanderous reports alleged to have been circulated by Mr. Hagin concerning Mr. Edensfield and his father-in-law, Mr. T. J. Malone. Both brought suit for damages, each for $2,500. Hagin won both cases, the one by Malone having been tried in January.
